

Feb. 10, 2022

To University of Lethbridge Faculty Association and its members,

The Confederation of Alberta Faculty Associations (CAFA) extends to all academic staff at the University of Lethbridge (ULFA members) a message of solidarity.

All professors, instructors and researchers want to return to their classrooms. This return to work can only be possible if the Government of Alberta and our employers choose to negotiate with your association and move off the secret government mandates that suppress wages and lose ground to inflation.

We are both encouraged and inspired by fellow academics standing up to protect not only their livelihoods but also their students' future and their institution's reputation. All academic workers need to stand up to the onslaught of concessions, wage rollbacks, and government cuts at our institutions.

CAFA and our affiliates stand with you: whether its on the picket line, helping to provide political leverage, or in a virtual space of social media.

In solidarity,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'K Kane', written in a cursive style.

Kevin Kane, President